Washington Duke Inn & Golf Club Joins Durham Rescue Mission to Cater Governor's Dinner for the Homeless

Pat McCrory names Durham Rescue Mission beneficiary following football wager

DURHAM, N.C., March 7, 2016 – Washington Duke Inn & Golf Club, the premier AAA Four Diamond luxury inn and golf club located on the campus of Duke University in Durham, North Carolina, today announced that Executive Chef Jason Cunningham will join volunteers of the Durham Rescue Mission to oversee food preparation for the “Governor’s Dinner for the Homeless” on Tuesday, March 8 from 5 – 7 p.m.

The dinner, benefiting the Durham Rescue Mission, is the result of a football wager between Governor Pat McCrory and Colorado Governor John Hickenlooper. Following The Big Game, Governor McCrory agreed to supply the Durham Rescue Mission with a food donation of 25 cases of turkey burgers and 25 cases of turkey sausages.

Executive Chef Jason Cunningham will be assisting the Durham Rescue Mission by overseeing food preparation for the dinner. With the help of the volunteers, the event is expected to feed more than 500 homeless men and women from the Durham community and surrounding areas. Duke University’s director of football development, James Mitchell, is also scheduled to speak at the dinner.

The Durham Rescue Mission is Durham’s oldest and largest long-term homeless shelter, providing food, clothing, permanent supportive housing and other services to needy men, women and children in the Triangle. In 2015, Charity Navigator ranked Durham Rescue Mission as the No. 1 homeless services provider out of six states across the southeast. According to the latest Durham County Point-in-Time Count, the organization serves nearly 64 percent of homeless in the Triangle area.
